WHAT IS CLAIMED IS:

1. A database comprising:

a first graphical user interface adapted to create and store data objects; and a second graphical user interface adapted to define and store bidirectional text describing relations between related data objects.

5

2. A database according to claim 1, further comprising:

a third graphical user interface adapted to view said data objects.

10

3. A database according to claim 2, wherein:

said third graphical is adapted to identify related data objects and display relevant parts of said bidirectional text with respect to related data objects in conjunction with visual indicia representing the related data objects.